About The Instructors

JANE HOLLENBERG is a consultant to the personal care industry, specializing in formulation and scale up of pigmented products. Her more than twenty years' experience in cosmetic formulation includes R&D positions at Coty and Revlon in development of dispersed systems. Most recently, Jane was Technical Director at Rona, responsible for cosmetic pigments and fine chemicals. While at Rona, Jane served as chairman of the CTFA Color Additive Committee and participated on the Editorial Task Force and the International Committee. She holds various patents covering the use of surface treated pigments in cosmetics and continues to work in the field of surface modification. Jane holds a B.S. in Biochemistry from Skidmore College.

EDWIN FAULKNER has been with Sun Chemical Corporation since 1973 and is currently Director of Business Development for the Colors Group. He is responsible for new business ventures and strategic planning global basis. During his career with Sun Chemical, he held numerous technical, manufacturing, administrative and sales positions. After graduating with a degree in chemistry from Widener University in 1971, he joined Allied Chemical as a production supervisor in their dye plant in Buffalo, New York. Ed is an adjunct professor at the University of Cincinnati and as such teaches in the Masters Program in Cosmetic Science. He also lectures in the Marketing MBA program at the same university. In addition, Ed has almost 30 years of experience in the color industry.
